Classification of Dahlias

Cactus Dahlias are distinguished by their long, pointed, somewhat revolute petals.

Decorative Dahlias include all large, loose flowering varieties that do not come under the other classes.

Paeony Flowered Dahlias, an entirely new type, semi-double, very broad petals.

Colarette Dahlias, single, with a row of small petals forming a collar about the centre disc.

Single Dahlias have but a single row of petals.

Show Dahlias include all large close flowering varieties of a single color, and those in which the ground color is of a lighter shade than the edges or tips.

Fancy Dahlias include all striped, large flowering varieties, and those in which the ground color is darker than the edges or tips. They are very variable, and often show but a single color.

Pompom Dahlias include all small, close flowering varieties.

ORDER EARLY.—In order to avoid delay in shipment of goods, we would advise orders to be sent in early.

CACTUS DAHLIAS

The cactus forms of Dahlias are exceedingly beautiful, and are hard to excel. They have long twisted petals and embrace nearly all the colors and shades to be found in any of the other types. The advances made in these in recent years is very noticeable, some charming blends of color being introduced, together with a form of flower which is a great improvement on the old varieties. To produce the finest flowers, most of the side shoots or laterals should be pinched out when the plants get strong, leaving the terminal buds, which then make fine flowers.

AEGIR.—Rich, warm cardinal-red, peculiarly twisted petals. Each 20 cents.

ALBERT MANDA.—This is the largest flowering Dahlia in cultivation with fine light green ample foliage, very stout stems which terminate into extraordinary flowers nearly a foot in diameter with beautiful shades of lemon, white and pink, the color varying according to the season, exposure and situation. It is one of the most extraordinary Dahlias ever raised and a forerunner of a new race. Each, $2.00.

DECORATIVE DAHLIAS

We have observed a growing tendency on the part of the public who frequent Horticultural Exhibitions to favor the exhibits of huge decorative varieties. In size they cannot be equalled and for decorative purposes they are unexcelled.

The Decorative Dahlia is an intermediate class between a Cactus and Show Dahlia. They are the most popular and valuable of double Dahlias, as they have the same hardiness of flower as the show without the rigidity of form, and much of the grace and informality of contour of the Cactus, without the corresponding weakness. The flowers are large, full to the center, but of open or irregular formation. They are of varied forms—flat, incurved or reflexed petals—but above all, strong vigorous growers; early and free bloomers. Among this class is found many of the best commercial cut flower varieties.
